House Tax Committee Is Attempting to Discover Effect of Measure

75 PER CENT BASIS

Question Raised How Much the Total Assessment of State Will Be Boosted

Whether the shift in taxes from the farm to the city under the provisions of the senate bill which would remove practically all exemptions and assess all property except farm improvements at 75 percent of its actual valuation will be too great is a question which the house committee on taxes and tax laws, J. A. Jardine, chairman, is attempting to discover. Action on consideration by the measure by the committee has been deferred until such time as the state tax commissioner's force is able to shift the possibilities and wade through an amazing mass of figures.

S. B. 255 was originally introduced by Senators Storstad and Gardiner, independents and had as its main purpose the abolition of all exemptions from taxation now in force.

It called for the assessment of all property whether "real, personal or mixed" at fifty percent of its value. The senate taxation committee, however, amended to law to assess all property at 75 percent of its actual valuation.

According to experts who have been working on the tabulation of comparative figures in an effort to learn just what the 75 percent valuation would do towards equalizing the taxes as between farm and city property, has expressed an adverse opinion that in the average cities would be increased 10 percent and rural districts 15 percent.

Under the provisions of the new bill here are a few of the changes. All city business property, hotels, city lots, public utilities, reduced 25 percent from present 100 percent valuation.

Exemption on household goods and personal wearing apparel wiped out, by change permitting only $200 exemption for both classes. Valuation on farm lands now assessed at 100% is decreased 25 percent.

Exemption on farm machinery and personal property is abolished, just about making up for next previous item. Exemptions on farm improvements are still continued.

Live stock exemptions are eliminated meaning a 50 percent increase on that point.

Removal of all exemptions on residences, will result in the taxation of hundreds of homes in the small villages, and the cheaper homes in the cities which now escape a real estate tax.

Under the present laws the owner of a residence in a city is granted a $500 exemption on a 50 percent valuation. This means that great numbers of houses costing less than 2,000 are not taxed.

Comparisons figures are cited by comparison. One home in Bismarck on which was paid $12.26 lot tax, $51.54 building tax, and no personal property tax, paid a total of $64.80. Under the proposed new 75 percent valuation proposed the taxes would be lot, 10.39, buildings 100.98, personal property 6.75, a total of $118.30, an 83 percent increase.

ADVANCE BILL LEVYING TAX FOR BUILDERS

Senate Votes 26 to 22 in Favor of Raising Funds Needed For Enterprise

PASS WOMEN'S BILL

The senate got down to work yesterday afternoon on the passage of senate bills and got outside of a big day's work in a prolonged session.

The first two house bills passed by the senate today were measures which had been introduced in the house by Miss Nellie Dougherty of Minot, and Mrs. Minnie Craig of Benson county. Miss Dougherty's bill provided for several penalties for intoxicated persons during automobiles while that of Mrs. Craig requires all doors on hotel rooms to be constructed so that they cannot be opened from the outside when locked with in.

Both bills were passed by the senate unanimously and without debate. Senators Rusch, Gardiner, and McCoy were appointed by Lt. Gov. Hyland to message them back to the house.

Opposes Home Builders Bill Senator Baker put in an objection against the acceptance of a committee report which recommended for passage House Bill 212, which provided for the levying of a tax to pay the bad debts of the North Dakota Home Building Association. He declared himself opposed to raising this money by the taxation method, and urged instead that bonds be issued or some similar plan adopted.

The bill was accepted for passage, however, the vote being cast along party lines and standing 26 to 22. Senator Baker also lodged a strong objection against the repeal of the law providing for the bonding of counties of the state to furnish seed and feed for needy farmers. He claimed that while this law had caused some heavy losses in certain counties of the state, its effect on whole has been good, as it had kept farmers in the state who would otherwise have left.

The bill however passed, and also a group of companion measures to facilitate collections on the bonds already issued, and for the issuance of refunding bonds when these become due.

House Bill 161 giving counties the right to accept or reject the free school text book plan on majority vote or majority petition, but prohibiting the bringing of the matter up for acceptance or rejection often than once in four years was passed. The bill for the creation of a state board of optometry and the licensing of optometrists went through after an amendment offered by Senator Ingerson, barring the state association of optometrists from any part in the selection of the examining board had been voted down.

Affected Water Works Rep. Jackson's House Bill repealing the measure passed at the 1921 session for the establishment of a state-owned electric plant at Bismarck was killed on committee report for the reason that the repeal of the bill would have included the repeal of that part of the measure permitting the city of Bismarck to acquire control of its water works system.

House Bill 231, providing severe penalties for duplication of signatures or false signatures on recall petitions was also killed on committee report.

The senate continued in session until 7 o'clock this evening and then adjourned for the night. Work will be resumed by the entire body at noon Friday and in the meantime the committees will be busy disposing of some 55 house bills that have not yet been acted on by them.

OPPOSE GAS TAX

Farmer Member Says It Is Unfair to them to Have to Pay it on Gasoline

REJECT PUBLICITY PLAN The house of representatives, by a vote of 30 to 46, today rejected amendments proposed to the senate income tax bill making all incomes public. The house, in committee of the whole, approved S. B. 363, making exceptions to the maximum hours of labor law for the women, permitting them to work ten hours in one day, but not more than 48 hours in one week, in case of sickness, protection of human life, banquets, celebrations, conventions, legislative sessions, court reporters, providing permission must be obtained from authorities. The house also approved S. B. 387, putting the inspection of weights and measures back in the hands of the sheriffs.

Polls will be open during municipal election in North Dakota in the future from 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. under senate bill No. 726, which passed the house today by a vote of 66 to 41. The bill, having been slightly amended in the house, goes back to the senate for concurrence, before it can go to the Governor for signature. Another senate bill, which makes 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. the hours for polls being open in all primary and general elections is still pending in the house.

These laws came into conflict with the senate on one bill and many senate bills were killed. For the third time Senator Martin's bill No. 200, extending the recall to include county commissioners, was before the house. Having failed to pass twice, a motion made by Rep. Eckert to reconsider was tabled by a vote of 66 to 44 which, Speaker Johnson said, prevented any further consideration of the bill at this session. Several Bismarck people joined for the bill.

Opposes Gasoline Tax Opposition also developed to senate bill No. 341, re-enacting and making a flat tax of one cent per gallon on gasoline. The bill came to the house with unanimous recommendation of the tax committee that it pass, but Rep. Ellington, Trail county, asked that it be sent to general orders. He said he either wanted to amend to kill the bill the farmers, he declared, ought not to have to pay a 1 cent tax on gasoline used to run tractors, for running engines to grind feed or similar work on the farm. It will be discussed in committee on the whole tomorrow.

Measures advanced toward passage by the house included several of the child welfare bills, including acceptance of the Sheppard-Towner maternity act, licensing of homes in which orphaned children are kept, regulating child labor in street trades, and the public health committee's report in favor of a new state board of health with enlarged powers and appropriation was favored by the committee.

ORDER LOANS FORECLOSED

Board of University and School Lands Take Action

The state board of university and school lands has instructed the attorney-general to proceed to foreclose on 371 farm loans covering mortgages on which the interest is due for more than three years, Land Commissioner Kositzky announced today.

The board, at its meeting, also canceled 20 mortgage land contracts many held by people who have left the state sometime ago, have paid no interest for years and some of which have gone through bankruptcy, he said.

The board also authorized payment today of $1,126.30 of taxes on some of lands mortgage, which have to be redeemed from sale for taxes, Mr. Kositzky said. This, he said, is but a small amount of the taxes the board has been forced to pay on school lands sold under contract.

The action, he declared, was necessary not only to protect the state's interest but to secure money for the common schools.

A bullet from a revolver fired during the struggling penetrated her heart. The defendant claimed that she was shot by accident.

FEDERAL ROAD AID IS STILL BIG PROBLEM

Three Senate Measures Before the House of Representatives for Disposition

LOSS MAY RESULT

Good Roads Secretary Says There Is Danger of Losing Much Federal Aid

Whether or not North Dakota will continue to receive federal aid in roadbuilding will be one of the chief battles in the remaining days of the legislative session with its scene laid in the house. It was probable that the highways committee of the house to which Senate Bills 44, 45 and 46 were assigned would make a report, for passage or postponement either today or Monday.

The three measures were further by the North Dakota Good Roads association which has as its purpose the creation of an adequate system of state roads. S. B. 44 had three purposes the re-organization of the state highway department, the control of 5,000 to 7,000 miles of the 107,000 miles of roads in the state and giving powers to the state highway commission to secure rights of way for state and federal roads.

This passed the senate 90 to 118 but the emergency clause failed. S. B. 45 provided for the control of all automobile license fees collection and disbursement of the same by the state highway commission and increased the fees on an average of approximately 60 per cent.

S. B. 46 is a constitutional amendment for reference to the people at the next general election establishing a state highway commission of three members holding office alternately for three years each; creating a state system of good roads and providing the methods of raising funds through automobile license fees.

This latter measure passed the senate by a vote of 20 to 19. S. B. 46 drew a 24 to 24 tie vote in the senate and Lt. Gov. Frank Hyland cast a deciding vote for passage. The action has been questioned as to its legality.

Two Pass Senate. The first and third of the bills passed the senate with but minor amendments. However on S. B. 45, one amendment raised the license fee on trucks and another attached as a rider wrote into the bill a general moratorium on road work and appropriations for federal aid contracts during the years of 1923 and 1924.

This rider is almost identical with H. R. 235 which was killed by the house. It at least nullifies any work on the part of the highway commission for at least two years, and possibly three, as by 1925 new surveys probably needs must have been made and could not be completed in time for doing an work in the year.

Proponents of the highway commission bills point to the folly of abandoning federal aid. Under the department of war regulations not more than 50 per cent of the cost of road construction under federal aid shall be paid by the government. This averages about 48 per cent of the total cost. Under the proposed group of highway bills as originally introduced, the state would pay the remaining with nothing assessed against the counties.

There are at the present time say engineers of the highway department between $300,000 and $1,000,000 of unfinished work on contracts in existence. The argument was used in killing H. B. 233, the repeal of the highway commission, that such repeal meant withdrawal of federal aid and the counties would have to pay the difference on road work for which contracts are now in existence. Thirty-six counties in the state have had surveys for state highways made by the highway commission and county engineers. Most all of these counties have made levies to meet their share of the expense, but under the war department regulations such March 4.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Members of the Coal Commission have informed the congressional appropriation committee that unless Congress find it possible to grant the $400,000 additional appropriation which the commission has sought for in carrying on its work of fact finding in the coal industry its activities will cease March 4.

BRAKEMAN LOSES LIFE AT DAWSON

June 24, N. D., Feb. 24.—Believed to have been thrust from a car which he was stocking at the engine coal docks by the high snow banks which lined the banks there, brakeman Charles Johnson was instantly killed by being cut to pieces by the car wheels at Dawson this morning at 4 o'clock.

There were no eye witnesses except Engineer John H. Carter and brakeman Hatfield, who heard the man cry out immediately after his last train disappeared. In accordance with railroad rules, when the lights disappeared the train was brought to a stop. The train stopped in a car's length. Brakeman Johnson had dropped across the rails and was cut to pieces.

Johnson Johnson is survived by his wife. He has been in Northern Pacific services for two years.

"Has Committed More Economic Crimes" Than Any in History

DEPLORES LEGISLATION

Declares Farm Credit Bills Are Most Unsound in Principle

Richmond, Va., Feb. 24.—The sixty-seventh Congress which ends March 4 "has committed more economic crimes" than are recorded in the previous history of the country, United States Senator Carter Glass, former secretary of the treasury, declared in an address here last night before the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Deploping the "spend government money" Senator Glass declared that much of the farm credit legislation brought up at this session of Congress was unsound in principle.

When the Lenroot-Anderson farm credit bill was passed by the senate, Senator Glass said he voted for it not because he thought "it was a question of $100,000,000 or $500,000,000."

Touching on activities of the war finance corporation Senator Glass said he believed it had been so far beneficial "but if perpetuated it will be one of the greatest curses we ever have had in this country."

Police Believe He May Have Fled to Italy When Limit Was Reached

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Although Joseph M. Marcino, barber, banker and financier, whose financial methods investigators here have declared resulted in shortages in the account of three eastern concerns totalling $519,000, was still being sought today, Samuel Lombardo, an associate of the missing man, was reported in Chicago. Lombardo, vice-president of the Niagara Insurance Company of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the concerns said to be short in accounts, was found here last night by newspapermen. He refused to discuss the charges against Marcino, also known as Joseph Posita.

"Anything you could tell me would be bad news," Lombardo said. "Don't want to listen to it. Besides my lawyer has advised me not to talk."

The two other institutions said to be involved in the shortages are said to be the First National bank of Warren, Mass., where investigators said $218,000 is missing and the Merchants and Mechanics bank at Philadelphia. Controlling interest in those institutions, as well as the insurance company, was owned by Marcino.

Lombardo, according to authorities, signed a check for $10,000 on the insurance company funds payable to Marcino in violation of the order of the New York state insurance department.

While private detectives had not given up their search of the United States for the missing banker it was reported here that Marcino boarded a ship at Tampico bound for Argentina. They placed no faith in reports that Marcino contemplated suicide.

An investigation were in progress all over the country into the tangled financial affairs another search was being made in Italy, where Marcino was reported to have fled when he became involved in difficulties following his purchase of a bank at Ferrus, California.

$1 OUT OF $5 GOES OUT FOR DAIRY GOODS

President Harding Urges Nations to Send Delegates to Meeting Oct. 2

Washington, Feb. 24.—President Harding has invited all nations to send official representatives to the World's Dairy Congress, which will meet in Washington from October 2 to 5. Its object will be to get together and exchange the information gained by the latest research into the influence of milk and milk products on national health, into means of reducing the costs of production and distribution while improving the quality of dairy products, into the international economic principles bearing on the dairy industry and methods of sanitary control.

The meeting will have its finger in every American's pie, because $1 out of every $5 spent for food in this country goes for milk, butter, cheese, or some other dairy product. The money caused to circulate in America annually by the cow is equal in amount to more than a third and perhaps nearly a half of our European war loans. The department of agriculture and the census bureau figure the United States has around 33,000,000 dairy cattle and that their products on the farms have a value annually of two and a half billion dollars. It is estimated that from the time the milk leaves the cow till it reaches the consumers in various forms its value has been enhanced from 100 to 1,000 per cent.

FORMATION OF NEW CAMPAIGN BODY PLANNED

Independents in Meeting to Discuss Proposal of Reorganization of I. V. A.

Plans for the re-organization of the Independent Voters' association on a basis which will give it a more thorough organization in the precincts, and counties will probably be presented at the meeting to be held here tonight.

If the plan is adopted it will make certain a thorough working organization in every legislative district of the state it is expected.

There will be a state central committee and executive committee which will probably be selected on the votes cast for the Independent candidates at the previous election. The executive committee will probably be named on a basis of judicial districts. The executive committee will name the executive officers who will have active charge of the association's activities.

These plans are of course only temporary but are expected to be submitted for the approval of the members of the association and Independent members of the legislature who meet here Saturday evening.

With the practical certainty that the Independent election laws will be submitted to a referendum vote by the Nonpartisan league and the action of the Democratic state executive committee Independents will discuss a plan of solidifying their forces.

About 200 are expected at the meeting tonight, and all plans for the campaign and organization will be thoroughly thrashed out.

BILL PROVIDING BOND ISSUE FOR BUILDING DORMITORIES AT STATE EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTIONS LOST

Issue Debated at Length on Floor of House by Representatives

LEAD TO LOG-ROLLING?

After lengthy discussion the house of representatives rejected the Thorson bill for a submission to state-wide vote of a constitutional amendment permitting the legislature to authorize issuance of bonds to build dormitories at state educational institutions.

There was no record vote, but there were few "noes" heard when the motion to indefinitely postpone the bill was put by Speaker Johnson. The bill came before the house on divided report of the judiciary committee, with the majority for indefinite postponement.

Chairman Starke, of the judiciary committee, opening the debate, said Prof. Wilkerson of the University of North Dakota had submitted figures which he believed convinced many members of the committee that bonds could be issued for the dormitories to mature in 40 years, and that rental from the rooms would pay the interest and build up a fund to retire the bonds.

Rep. Twichell, opposing the bill, declared that Prof. Wilkerson "didn't convince anyone that we could get something for nothing."

"If we submit this to a vote of the people we have given it the prestige of legislative endorsement," said Rep. Twichell. "What will happen? The same thing will happen that happened at the A. C. when we put the county seat argument to a vote. They will get out thousands of circulars and the state will pay for them. The forces opposed to bond issues would be organized. The amendment may carry, and then they can come here in two years and say that the people told us to build the dormitories."

"If there is anything we need to issue bonds for it is for buildings containing class rooms," he said. "It is estimated the dormitories would cost $2,000,000, or $1,000 for each student occupying the building."

Waxes Sarcastic
Rep. Vogel, McLean, waxed sarcastic in his opposition.

"Where are we heading for?" he asked. "When in 1917 the Nonpartisan league authorized bonds for $17,500,000 we were told the state was being bankrupted. If all the legislation in this session providing for bond issues passed it will amount to $34,500,000. If the league made the sky the limit, the I. V. A. is knocking out the sky."

Rep. Watt, Cass county, declared Prof. Wilkerson admitted that the rent from dormitory rooms would not maintain them and retire the bonds.

Rep. Carr, Stutsman, said that "while I realize there is a lot of force to the argument that the present generation ought not to pay for buildings that last 100 years, yet I feel it is a very dangerous measure, and would let down the bars and lead us into difficulties."

WELFARE BILL IS DEFEATED

County Board Plan Loses in the House

Senate bill No. 173, providing means of organizing county welfare boards and employing social welfare experts, was defeated in the house of representatives last night.

It was the first of the measures advocated by the Children's Code Commission to be defeated. The bill was 36 yeas to 65 nays. The "clinch" motion was applied by opponents, making impossible the reconsideration at his session.

The measure provided that whenever county commissioners should deem it necessary they should appoint county welfare boards to act for the welfare of all the children, and giving the board power to appoint an executive secretary and assistants well versed in child welfare.

Many members feared it would create too big a burden of expense. Several of the child welfare measures have been passed.

French Forces Seize 12 Billion Marks and Plates

Berlin, Feb. 24.—French forces have boarded the Berlin-Cologne express near Hengelsy and confiscated a consignment of 12 billion marks and plates belonging to the Reichsbank, it was announced today.

NEED $400,000.
Washington, Feb. 24.—Members of the Coal Commission have informed the congressional appropriation committee that unless congress finds it possible to grant the $400,000 additional appropriation which the commission has sought for in carrying on its work of fact finding in the coal industry its activities will cease March 4.

There are at the present time say engineers of the highway department between $800,000 and $1,000,000 of unfinished work on contracts in existence. The argument was used in killing H. B. 233, the repeal of the highway commission, that such repeal meant withdrawal of federal aid and the counties would have to pay the difference on road work for which contracts are now in existence. Thirty-six counties in the state have had surveys for state highways made by the highway commission and county engineers. Most all of these counties have made levies to meet their share of the expense, but under the war department regulations such (Continued on Page 6)

BRAKEMAN LOSES LIFE AT DAWSON

Jamestown, N. D., Feb. 24.—Believed to have been thrust from a car which he was standing at the engine coal docks by the high snow banks which lined the tracks there, brakeman Charles Johnson was instantly killed by being cut to pieces by the car wheels at Dawson this morning at 4 o'clock.

There were no eye witnesses except Engineer John H. Carter and Brakeman Hatfield, who heard the man cry out immediately after his lantern disappeared in accordance with railroad rules when the lights disappeared the train was brought to a stop. The train stopped in a car's length. Brakeman Johnson had dropped across the rails and was cut to pieces.

Johnson Johnson is survived by his wife. He has been in Northern Pacific service for two years.

GLASS SAYS CONGRESS HAS BEEN BUNGLER

"Has Committed More Economic Crimes" Than Any in History

DEPLORES LEGISLATION

Declares Farm Credit Bills Are Most Unsound in Principle

Richmond, Va., Feb. 24.—The sixty-seventh Congress which ends March 4 "has committed more economic crimes" than are recorded in the previous history of the country, United States Senator Carter Glass, former secretary of the treasury, declared in an address here last night before the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking.

Deploping what he termed the increasing drift to "spend government money" Senator Glass declared that much of the farm credit legislation brought up at this session of Congress was unsound in principle.

When the Lenroot-Anderson farm credits bill was passed by the senate, Senator Glass said he voted for it not because he thought "it was a question of $100,000,000 or $500,000,000."

Touching on activities of the war finance corporation Senator Glass said he believed it had been so far beneficial "but if perpetuated it will be one of the greatest curses we ever have had in this country."

Rep. Carr, Stutsman, said that "while I realize there is a lot of force to the argument that the present generation ought not to pay for buildings that last 100 years, yet I feel it is a very dangerous measure, and would let down the bars and lead us into difficulties."

TO SUPPORT FORD LATER IS EXPLANATION

Michigan Democrats Adjourn Without Endorsement of Manufacturer

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24.—Michigan Democrats failed to endorse Henry Ford for the 1924 presidential race but will give the manufacturer their support "when the proper time comes," according to Charles Kimmeler of Cassopolis, leader of the faction that urged the endorsement before the party state convention held yesterday.

The rank and file of the party in Michigan was for Ford, he asserted.

Failing on an out and out endorsement the Ford adherents put through a resolution applauding him "for his tremendous influence for good on the economic, industrial and political affairs of the nation."

Miss Dougherty Wins Thanks of Many Members

Miss Nellie Dougherty, representative, Ward county, had a heart for restless members of the house of representatives last night.

Noticing many were showing the strain of the long grind, she moved that the house suspend rule No. 57—the anti-smoking rule—at night sessions. The vote was 56 to 14. Rep. Burkhardt, also of Ward county, protested the action.

J. M. Marcino, Barber, Banker and Financier Short About $519,000

Police Believe He May Have Fled to Italy When Limit Was Reached

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Although Joseph M. Marcino, barber, banker and financier, whose financial methods investigators here have declared resulted in shortages in the accounts of three eastern concerns totalling $519,000 was still being sought today, Samuel Lombardo, an associate of the missing man, was reported in Chicago. Lombardo, vice president of the Niagara Insurance Company of Buffalo, N. Y., one of the concerns said to be short in accounts, was found here last night by newspapermen. He refused to discuss the charges against Marcino, also known as Joseph Posita.

"Anything you could tell me would be bad news," Lombardo said. "Don't want to listen to it. Besides my lawyer has advised me not to talk."

The two other institutions said to be involved in the shortage are said to be the First National bank of Warren, Mass., where investigators said $213,000 is missing and the Merchants and Mechanics bank at Philadelphia. Controlling interest in those institutions, as well as the insurance company, was owned by Marcino.

Lombardo, according to authorities, signed a check for $10,000 on the insurance company funds payable to Marcino in violation of the orders of the New York state insurance department.

While private detectives had not given up their search of the United States for the missing banker it was reported here that Marcino boarded a ship at Tampico bound for Argentina. They placed no faith in reports that Marcino contemplated suicide.

As investigations were in progress all over the country into the tangled financial affairs another search was being made in Italy, where Marcino was reported to have fled when he became involved in difficulties following his purchase of a bank at Perras, California.

CABINET NOT UNIT UPON CREDIT BILL

Mellon Favors Capper Measure While Wallace Believes in Lenroot Solution

Washington, Feb. 23.—Belief that the Lenroot bill as it was passed by the senate "offers a satisfactory basis for a real rural credit system which would promote more stable farm production and more orderly marketing" was expressed today by Sen. Wallace of the agriculture department in a letter to Rep. Anderson, Republican, Minnesota, co-author of the measure. Declaring that he could see no objection to the Capper bill which also receives senate approval recently and pending before a house committee, Mr. Wallace said "to offer it as a rural credit bill or as a substitute for the Lenroot bill would give the farmers the best reason for thinking that in reply to their request for bread that they had been offered a stone."

Mr. Wallace's letter was accepted by many members of the house, taking direct issue with a letter recently sent by Sen. Mellon of the treasury to Rep. McAdams of the house banking committee expressing preference for the Capper bill and declaring provision of the Lenroot Capper bill "dangerous and unworkable."

The Lenroot-Anderson bill as sent from house to senate Mr. Wallace said has received the cordial approval of the president and has been received by the farmers of the country as a well considered effort to meet their credit need.

RAISERS GET BETTER PRICES FOR ANIMALS

General Level for 1922 Higher Than a Year Earlier Statistics Indicate

Washington, Feb. 24.—More meat animals were marketed and material prices were obtained by the livestock producers of the country last year as compared with 1921, according to the Department of Agriculture.

The combined receipts of cattle, calves, hogs, sheep and lambs at public stockyards last year amounted to $9,641,002 head, composed with $5,055,815 in 1921 and $7,855,454 in 1920. The increase in the combined marketings during 1922 over 1921 was 4, 593,187 head or 5.1 percent and the increase over 1920 was 1, 392,548 head or 2 percent. It was the exceptionally large receipts of cattle, calves, and hogs which resulted in the increase, the marketings of sheep and lambs in 1922 having been the lightest since 1917.

The general level of prices during 1922 was materially higher than a year earlier and with the exception of cattle during the first five months of the year only in rare instances did any class of stock drop at the 1921 level. In view of the relatively light supplies available, animals led in the upward movement of prices, the 1922 average being $3.54 higher per 100 lbs. than 1921. Ewes advanced $1.69, hogs 71 cents, and good and medium beef steers 26 cents, per 100 lbs. Compared with 1920, however, the 1922 prices followed substantially lower levels, hogs being $4.69 under the 1920 level, cattle $4.57, ewes $2.17, and lambs $1.92, all per 100 lbs.

One of the outstanding features of the livestock market during 1922 was the relatively heavy movement of stockers and feeders. The increase in receipts was impressive but this movement was largely neutralized by the increase over 1921 in shipments of animals back to the country for further feeding.

A fair conception of this shifting of the stream of meat animals from the shambles back to the feed-lot may be gained from the fact that in 1921 stocker and feeder shipments represented 8.3 percent of the receipts while in 1922 they represented 9.8 percent. Thus, although during 1922 receipts of live stock increased 5.1 percent and local slaughter 3.1 percent, stocker and feeder shipments increased 36.5 percent over the preceding year. This single fact serves as an excellent index both of the change in sentiment among livestock producers and one of the improvement in general credit and trade conditions during the year just closed.

An outstanding feature of the cattle movement was the striking increase in the marketing of both western range cattle and Canadian cattle. From July 15 to Dec. 30 receipts of such stock at Chicago alone amounted to 293,109 head, compared with 148,914 during the corresponding period of 1921, an increase of approximately 81 percent.

Although during a greater part of 1922 cattle prices lagged somewhat behind those of hogs and sheep a fact which was the basis of a rather bitter complaint and considerable loss on the part of the range cattlemen in particular, cattle prices were noteworthy in that there was an absence of sudden and wide fluctuations in price and a steadily upward trend. During the entire year weekly average prices of good and medium beef steers, which grades constituted more than 75 percent of the steers offered, fluctuated within the extremely narrow range of $1.86 per 100 lbs. Opening prices were within 10 cents of the lowest of the year and closing quotations were only 25 cents under the high point.

At Alto Cruceiro, Bolivia, water freezes every night in the year, while at noon the sun sometimes is hot enough to raise blisters on the skin.

FIVE-ROOM HOME FOR $6845

PHOTO AND PLANS, FURNISHED BY THE CURTIS SERVICE BUREAU, CLINTON, IA., FOR A FIVE-ROOM HOME.

Three bedrooms in a five-room house is an unusual feature of this attractive home. This greater housing capacity is possible because a dining alcove is substituted for the regular dining room.

In other ways, also, this plan demonstrates the best kind of economy. Ordinary materials are used in stock sizes. Even the woodwork is in stock designs that harmonize with the development of the whole building. Stucco is generally considered an economical material for construction, and requires almost no upkeep. Notice the plain outline of the house and the roof. These considerations make for weather-tightness and economy.

Paneled Wainscot
A vestibule and boxed stair increase the winter comfort and the year-round privacy of the house. The long living room occupies the right side of the house, adjoining the porch. An outstanding feature of this room is its paneled wainscot of stained oak. This is a wall treatment that is not exorbitantly expensive and never needs replacement.

The living room cannot help being home-like, even when vacant, for it also has a room-end of bookcases and window seat, and a homey fireplace, opposite which is an interesting alcove on the inside wall.

Light Kitchen
There is a large, light kitchen, with windows on two sides to keep it cool and free from odors and steam, and there is plenty of space for sink, range, dressers and worktable. Only a cased opening separates it from the dining alcove where five people may be seated.

Upstairs, the three corner bedrooms are supplied with clothes closets, and one also has a built-in tray case, replacing a chiffonier in that room.

This house is estimated by the Curtis Service Bureau, Clinton, Ia., to cost about $6845. This includes heating, wiring and plumbing, although the sum may vary slightly in different parts of the country.

What's Going On In The World

Week's Chief Events Briefly Told

By Charles P. Stewart

The State Department's quoted now as doubting if the Pan-American Congress in March will induce the Uruguayan president, Dr. Brum's plan for a League of American Nations.

If North Americans had the slightest idea how South Americans feel, they never would have considered such a thing remotely possible.

The theory here seems to be that although Americans are North and South, yet they're all Americans and can agree, at any rate, on some sort of a joint attitude toward the rest of the world.

The fact is that South Americans are mostly unassimilated Europeans. They're a thousand miles nearer to Europe in sentiment, sympathy and comprehension than they are to the United States.

Not only are they Europeans but they're predominantly Spanish, and while the North American has pretty well forgotten his war with Spain, the Spaniard hasn't.

About the only feeling that the South American, as a South American, has toward the American of the north is that the latter is a strong dangerous neighbor, and that the less the American of the south has to do with him, the safer he'll be.

IT'S TOO LATE NOW
The United States had one chance, indeed, to win South American favor, but she botched the job.

During the war South America needed her. If she'd merely been too busy to heed this call it wouldn't have been so bad. The allies, however, had various things they wanted done there that they didn't care to do themselves, because they knew the South American wouldn't like it, which would hurt their standing later on. So they invited the United States to attend to these matters for them, and she did. The thanks she received was to have the allies make capital out of it against her every chance they got.

Now the "Americans" shortcomings after the conflict were mainly trade mistakes of ignorance, like forgetting, for instance, that December's mid-summer and July mid-winter south of the Equator, and shipping winter goods in the spring and summer supplies in the fall.

Commerce rivals made the most of these errors, too.

Then there's the United States' persistence in trying to get Latin America into a patent and trade mark league with her, which, as a Venezuelan "Yellow Book" remarked, "would obligate us, at great expense, to organize a bureau to record all patents and trade marks registered in any of the signatory countries," a thing Venezuela isn't enthusiastic over, considering that the United States registers about as many a day as she does in a month.

These are just illustrations. South Americans are half irritated, half contemptuous of North Americans' failure to understand such things.

Of course there are individuals pro-North Americans. President Brum of Uruguay's one for inter-ethnic reasons. He isn't representative.

NO SOLUTION YET
To the Ruhr puzzle no solution has been found.

France hasn't made a particle of progress in the direction of collecting any war damages, and as the Ruhr enters winter, very expensive, naturally she's getting worse, and worse off financially every day she continues the occupation.

On the other hand, Germany's

NORTHERN PACIFIC PLANS EXTENSION INTO RICH ROSEBUD COUNTRY

St. Paul, Feb. 24.—Construction of a $2,000,000 railroad in southeastern Montana by the Northern Pacific railway will result in the development of coal mining operations of type and extent such as will revolutionize the industry in the Northwest, it was disclosed here Thursday.

Northern Pacific officials declined to discuss the project but it was learned from authoritative sources that a right of way for the new line is being bought and that approximately forty square miles containing an exceptionally rich deposit of semibituminous coal, high in heating properties, is being acquired by purchase and by lease from the Federal government by the railway company.

To Begin Work on Road
The new coal field in the Rosebud district will be tapped by the new line to run thirty-five miles south from the main line near Forsyth, Mont. Construction of the branch line is scheduled to be started early this spring and completed next fall. Mining operations are expected to start then.

The Northern Pacific will operate the coal field, inaugurating open pit operations in the Northwest. Steam shovels will be used to remove the coal, which lies about thirty feet below the surface and generally is in deposits about three feet deep. This will be the first strip coal mining north of the Illinois fields, and is heralded by business men of the Twin Cities as the most important development in the mining industry in the Northwest since the opening of the Northern Minnesota iron ore mines. The bulk of the coal produced from the Rosebud district field will be used by the Northern Pacific, but in the event of such a fuel scarcity as would endanger the Northwest, business men here believe the government would make the coal available to the open market. Because part of the field will be under government lease, the railroad would not be permitted to place the coal on the market under normal conditions.

Study Vast Coal Supply
Northern Pacific officials are known to be making a close study of electrification and the availability of this vast coal supply is admitted highly important in that connection. Location of a steam power plant at the mines in proximity to the deposits would permit cheaper electrification that a much larger investment necessary to establishment of a hydro-electric plant, Twin Cities engineers said.

Government reports give the Rosebud coal deposits as more than 350,000,000 tons. It is reported the Northern Pacific plans to produce about 1,000,000 tons annually. Transportation of the output to the main line will be especially economical as it will have very low grade into the field and a velocity grade from the mines to the main line.

The new railroad also will tap a rich farming and ranching section at the south edge of the Tongue River and Crow Indian reservations. It is expected a new town will be an early development from the opening of the new strip mines.

The Northern Pacific is operating underground coal mines at Red Lodge but this method is more expensive than strip mining and the Red Lodge operations will be overshadowed by the Rosebud development, business men said.

S. B. 308—Amending law relative to commissioners to excuse from bond such persons as are able to show they were misinformed. To apply in case of William, Gravy, Richard county.

worse off, too, though it didn't seem, at the time her territory was invaded, as if she has much margin left to get worse in.

The best international authorities say it can't be long before both sides will have to ask for neutral mediation.

They generally agree also that when this happens it will be the signal for a complete re-making of the Versailles treaty, as an impossible document.

It's noteworthy that practically the only constructive suggestions any world statesman has made have come from Joseph Caillaux, an ex-premier of France, whose views were so far in advance of his countrymen's during the war that he barely missed facing a firing squad. Caillaux's for a "United States of Europe" and for land disarmament.

DEBT COLLECTING PLANS
The war debt funding arrangement which the Washington administration made with England has been approved by the United States Senate.

The senators, however, made a few changes, so the agreement will have to go back to the representatives for another endorsement. There's no chance that there will be any objection.

The administration meant the agreement to be a model it could follow in making similar settlements with other countries, without asking Congress about them again. But the Senate insists Congress shall keep on having the last word, as in the present case. That was the principal change made.

There's no occasion to worry about it at present, for no other country's threatening to pay the United States.

As for her own claims, England's showing signs of impatience. It's understood she soon will ask the allies who are under obligations to her when they can begin doing something about it.

Another report is that the American government and financiers will try to help the English pound back to parity with the United States dollar in international exchange markets, the idea being that this will send part of the world's gold, most of which has been gravitating in this country's direction, toward London.

It will be a good thing, if the plan works. While flattering to have the bulk of the gold in existence, it's been overdone with bad results to American trade.

The world's population at the beginning of the nineteenth century was estimated at 700 millions. Now it is put at approximately 1600 millions, having more than doubled in 120 years.

BOND BIDS ARE SOUGHT

School Board to Sell $85,000 of Bonds on March 13

The city school board, at a meeting last night, decided to advertise for bids for $85,000 of bonds voted in the recent school election, bids to be received on March 13.

Advance inquiries received indicate that the bids may be the best ever made in North Dakota, according to a board member, and it is expected the bonds will be sold at 5 percent or less interest.

The board expects to build the new west side grade school, beginning early in the spring.

A resolution was passed urging the advisability of developing debate work in the high school.

How Germany Is Defying The French Steam-Roller

Hugo Stinnes, Germany's richest man and, rumor says, the virtual dictator of her economic destiny, declares curtly concerning France's stranglehold on the Ruhr basin: "No negotiations by us. We shall fight it out." In terms equally explicit General Degoutte, commander of the French forces of occupation, announces that "never, until Germany makes adequate settlement for the frightful wrongs and damages inflicted upon my country, will I order my troops to withdraw." And speaking in Dusseldorf to a representative of the Associated Press, General Degoutte declared, "I solemnly warn Germany if a single one of my soldiers is harmed and she forces another battle on us, she will not stay our hands by crying 'Kamerad'! It will be a fight to the finish—a complete knockout."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (February 24) shows the progress of the French occupation of the Ruhr basin and presents public opinion upon the subject from all angles. This interesting article is graphically illustrated with half-tones, cartoons, and a map which shows the grip that France has upon industrial Germany.

LOWER PRICE
DECLARED AIM OF OPERATORS

Major Stanley Washburn
Says All Can Prosper in North Dakota

A fair price for labor, an adequate return on capital invested to the operators and the lowest price possible to the consumer are the objectives of the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association," according to a statement issued today by Major Stanley Washburn, president of the operators associations, in explaining the purpose of the mine owners organization which has set itself to the task of developing the lignite coal deposits of North Dakota by extending the lignite market into eastern North Dakota and parts of Minnesota and South Dakota.

"Some of the eastern operators' association," are credited with having formed their organizations for two purposes: to fight the labor unions and fix a high price of coal at the mine. Neither of these motives have any part in the aims of the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association. It is an organization devoted primarily to the development of new markets for lignite coal. We believe that any industry which is based on the premise that its success can be achieved only by the squeezing out of small competitors, beating down labor and sand-bagging the consumer is unsound both ethically and economically. This association was organized to serve in every way possible the interests of the small mines in North Dakota as well as the large mines. Every operator in North Dakota should realize that it is not necessary for the mines to seek business at each others expense. It is our conviction that the 150 mines operating in this state, working in harmony and united in their support of the objectives of the organization, can mine and sell outside of North Dakota from three to five million tons of coal a year without in any way making competition between them necessary.

"When the farmer realizes that the use of lignite coal throughout the northwest means enough crops in the northwest to move his crop; when the consumer realizes that the use of lignite coal means that every dollar he pays for fuel goes into the northwestern banks for the use of northwestern prosperity; when the banks realize that the use of lignite instead of eastern coal will mean an increase in their deposits of $100,000,000 a year, then will these three great factors in the community unite in a concentrated effort through their civic organizations and state agencies to bring about the education of every class of consumer to use lignite instead of eastern coal."

The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association invites the assistance, co-operation and advice of every newspaper, bank, civic organization and industry to unite with them in this program destined for the common good of every man, woman and child who lives within the borders of Minnesota and the Dakotas.

The operators have launched an advertising campaign with the first effort being directed against the prejudice against lignite because it is not briquetted. The operators claim that if more than 1,000,000 tons can be used for all purposes by a part of North Dakota, the entire state and parts of Minnesota and South Dakota can use lignite exclusively.

Operators who have become affiliated with the organization have approved an assessment of one cent a ton on their lignite production to finance the preliminary campaign. A more extensive program will be mapped out at the next meeting of the operators which will be held sometime in March.

They stopped the elevator and menacing him with a revolver took his pouch of diamonds, Hart said, and left him on an upper floor.

Delegates From All Over
Northwest Will Gather
in St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 24.—Opening Tuesday morning at the St. Paul auditorium, the first Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilization Conference promises to attract attention far in excess of any meeting hitherto held between farmers on the one hand and leaders of financial and business thought on the other.

Delegates from farm organizations, including even township units of the Farm Bureau Movement, will be present from Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and other states; while farm organizations generally including grain-shippers, breeders, creamery-men, threshermen, and similar lines, will come from these four states and also from Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, and Montana.

Principal trade associations in the territory covered by these ten states have been formally invited to send their presidents, secretaries and representative delegates wherever possible so that the conference may be indicative of the best possible thought in these ten states.

Joining hands with these two groups will be accredited delegations from the Minnesota Bankers' association and from similar associations in the other nine states. At least 1,000 bankers are expected to be present, while neophytes have been received from more than 1,200 farmers and from scores of business men.

Walton Peete, director of marketing for the American Farm Bureau Federation; Samuel Dunn, editor of the "Railway Age"; M. L. Countryman, general counsel for the Great Northern Railway, and John R. Mitchell of the Federal Reserve Board, are among the leaders who are to present their views at the conference which opens Tuesday morning. An opportunity will be given at each of the five sessions for an open debate.

It is expected that the recommendations of this conference will have a decided bearing upon the Co-operative Marketing Conference which has been called for March 2 at St. Paul, and upon pending legislation.

Railroad fares covering the period of both conferences will be at the rate of one and one-half fare for the round trip. Anyone desiring to attend should buy his ticket one way and obtain a certificate or receipt from his railway agent covering fare paid. This receipt will be validated at Conference Headquarters at the St. Paul auditorium upon his arrival, with a final return limit of March 3rd.

THE MODERN SOCIETY REVELS WHICH RIVAL IN SPLENDOR THE PLEASURE OF THE ANCIENTS.

LOWER PRICE DECLARED AIM OF OPERATORS

Major Stanley Washburn
Says All Can Prosper in North Dakota

"A fair price to labor, an adequate return on capital invested to the operators and the lowest price possible to the consumer are the objectives of the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association," according to a statement issued today by Major Stanley Washburn, president of the operators' association, in explaining the purpose of the mine owners' organization which has set itself to the task of developing the lignite coal deposits of North Dakota by extending the lignite market into eastern North Dakota and parts of Minnesota and South Dakota.

"Some of the eastern operators' association," the statement continues, "are credited with having formed their organizations for two purposes: to fight the labor unions and fix a high price of coal at the mine. Neither of these motives have any part in the aims of the North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association. It is an organization devoted primarily to the development of new markets for lignite coal. We believe that any industry which is based on the premise that its success can be achieved only by the squeezing out of small competitors, beating down labor and sand-bagging the consumer is unsound both ethically and economically. This association was organized to serve in every way possible the interests of the small mines in North Dakota as well as the large mines. Every operator in North Dakota should realize that it is not necessary for the mines to seek business at each others expense. It is our conviction that the 150 mines operating in this state, working in harmony and united in their support of the objectives of the organization, can mine and sell outside of North Dakota from three to five million tons of coal a year without in any way making cut-throat competition between them necessary."

"When the farmer realizes that the use of lignite coal throughout the northwest means enough cars in the northwest to move his crop; when the consumer realizes that the use of lignite coal means that every dollar he pays for fuel goes into the pockets of the large mine; when the banks realize that the use of lignite instead of eastern coal will mean an increase in their deposits of over $100,000,000 a year, then will these three great factors in the community unite in a concentrated effort through their civic organizations and state agencies to bring about the education of every class of consumer to use lignite instead of eastern coal."

"The North Dakota Lignite Coal Operators' association invites the assistance, co-operation and advice of every newspaper, bank, civic organization and industry to unite with them in this program destined for the common good of every man, woman and child who lives within the borders of Minnesota and the Dakotas."

The operators have launched an advertising campaign with the first effort being directed against the prejudice against lignite because it is not briquetted. The operators claim that if more than 1,000,000 tons can be used for all purposes by a part of North Dakota, the entire state and parts of Minnesota and South Dakota can use lignite exclusively.

Operators who have become affiliated with the organization have approved an assessment of one cent a ton on their lignite production to finance the preliminary campaign. A more extensive program will be mapped out at the next meeting of the operators which will be held sometime in March.

Claims Bandits Robbed Him of $100,000 in Diamonds

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Henry C. Hart, a New York diamond salesman, who gave his address at 87 Nassau street, reported today to the police that he had been robbed by two armed men of $100,000 worth of diamonds in a downtown business place.

The robbers threw Eugene Winberry, the elevator operator, from the cage of the elevator in which Hart was riding, out at the sixth floor he told the police, and with Hart a prisoner mounted several floors higher.

They stopped the elevator and menacing him with a revolver took his pouch of diamonds, Hart said, and left him on an upper floor.

EXPECT MANY THOUSAND AT PRICE CONFAB

Delegates From All Over
Northwest Will Gather
in St. Paul

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 24.—Opening Tuesday morning at the St. Paul auditorium, with a seating capacity of 10,000 persons, the first Northwest Agricultural Price Stabilization Conference promises to attract attention far in excess of any meeting hitherto held between farmers on the one hand and leaders of financial and business thought on the other.

Delegates from farm organizations, including even township units of the Farm Bureau Movement, will be present from Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Iowa and other states; while farm organizations generally including grain-shippers, breeders, creamery-men, threshermen, and similar lines, will come from these four states and also from Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Kansas, Nebraska, and Montana.

Principal trade associations in the territory covered by these ten states have been formally invited to send their presidents, secretaries and representative delegates wherever possible so that the conference may be indicative of the best possible thought in these ten states.

Joining hands with these two groups will be accredited delegations from the Minnesota Bankers' association and from similar associations in the other nine states. At least 1,000 bankers are expected to be present, while acceptances have been received from more than 1,200 farmers and from scores of business men.

Walton Petet, director of marketing for the American Farm Bureau Federation; Samuel Dunn, editor of the "Railway Age"; M. L. Countryman, general counsel for the Great Northern Railway, and John R. Mitchell of the Federal Reserve Board, are among the leaders who are to present their views at the conference which opens Tuesday morning. An opportunity will be given at each of the five sessions for an open debate.

It is expected that the recommendations of this conference will have a decided bearing upon the Co-operative Marketing Conference which has been called for March 2 at St. Paul, and upon pending legislation.

Railroad fares covering the period of both conferences will be at the rate of one and one-half fare for the round trip. Anyone desiring to attend should buy his ticket one way and obtain a certificate or receipt from his railway agent covering fare paid. This receipt will be validated at Conference Headquarters at the St. Paul auditorium upon his arrival, with a final return limit of March 3rd.

A Free Trial Package is Mailed to Everyone Who Writes

A. L. Rice, a prominent manufacturer of Adams, N. Y., discovered a process of making a new kind of paint without the use of oil. He named it Powderpaint. It comes in the form of a dry powder and all that is required is cold water to make a paint weather proof, fire proof, sanitary and durable for outside or inside painting. It is the cement principle applied to paint. It adheres to any surface, wood, stone or brick, spreads and looks like oil paint and costs about one-fourth as much.

Write to A. L. Rice, Inc., Manufacturers, 711 North St., Adams, N. Y., and a trial package will be mailed to you, also color card and full information showing you how you can save a good many dollars. Write today.

RAISERS GET BETTER PRICES FOR ANIMALS

General Level for 1922 Higher Than a Year Earlier Statistics Indicate

Washington, Feb. 24. More meat animals were marketed and materially higher prices were obtained by the livestock producers of the country last year as compared with 1921, according to the Department of Agriculture.

The combined receipts of cattle, calves, hogs, sheep and lambs at public stockyards last year amounted to $9,644,002 head, composed with $5,055,815 in 1921 and $7,855,454 in 1920. The increase in the combined marketings during 1922 over 1921 was 4, 593,187 head or 5.1 percent and the increase over 1920 was 1, 33,548 head or 2 percent. It was the exceptionally large receipts of cattle, calves, and hogs which resulted in the increases, the marketings of sheep and lambs in 1922 having been the lightest since 1917.

The general level of prices during 1922 was materially higher than a year earlier and with the exception of cattle during the first five months of the year only in rare instances did any class of stock drop at the 1921 level. In view of the relatively light supplies available, animals led in the upward movement of prices, the 1922 average being $5.51 higher per 100 lbs. than for 1921. Excepted $1.60, hogs $1.10, and good and medium beef steers 26 cents, all per 100 lbs.

Compared with 1920, however, the 1922 prices followed substantially lower levels, hogs being $4.59 under the 1920 level, cattle $4.57, ewes $2.17, and lambs $1.92, all per 100 lbs.

One of the outstanding features of the livestock market during 1922 was the relatively heavy movement of stockers and feeders. The increase in receipts was impressive but this movement was largely neutralized by the increase over 1921 in shipments of animals back to the country for further feeding.

A fair conception of this shifting of the stream of meat animals from the shambles back to the feedlot may be gained from the fact that in 1921 stocker and feeder shipments represented 8.3 percent of the receipts while in 1922 they represented .08 percent. Thus, although during 1922 receipts of live stock increased 5.1 percent and local slaughter 5.3 percent, stocker and feeder shipments increased 35.5 percent over the preceding year. This single fact serves as an excellent index both of the change in sentiment among livestock producers, and one of the improvement in general credit and trade conditions during the year just closed.

An outstanding feature of the cattle movement was the striking increase in the marketing of both western range cattle and Canadian cattle. From July 15 to Dec. 30 receipts of such stock at Chicago alone amounted to 269,100 head, compared with 148,014, during the corresponding period of 1921, an increase of approximately 81 percent.

Although during a greater part of 1922 cattle prices lagged somewhat behind those of hogs and sheep, a fact which was the basis of rather bitter complaint and considerable loss on the part of the range cattlemen in particular, cattle prices were noteworthy in that there was an absence of sudden and wide fluctuations in price and a steadily upward trend. During the entire year weekly average prices of good and medium beef steers, which grades constituted more than 75 percent of the steers offered, fluctuated within the extremely narrow range of $1.86 per 100 lbs. Opening prices were within 10 cents of the lowest of the year and closing quotations were only 25 cents under the high point.

At Alto Cruces, Bolivia, water freezes every night in the year, while at noon the sun sometimes is hot enough to raise blisters on the skin.

Look Out For Flying Sparks!

They are responsible for a large part of the million-dollars-a-day fire loss in this country. If you are planning to build or repair, it would be wise to use fire-resistant roofing.

Even the most careful construction sometimes fails to withstand fire. The only certain protection against financial loss is the kind of insurance sold by this Hartford Fire Insurance Company agency.

PHOTO AND PLANS, FURNISHED BY THE CURTIS SERVICE BUREAU, CLINTON, IA., FOR A FIVE-ROOM HOME.

Three bedrooms in a five-room house is an unusual feature of this attractive home. This greater housing capacity is possible because a dining alcove is substituted for the regular dining room.

In other ways, also, this plan demonstrates the best kind of economy. Ordinary materials are used in stock sizes. Even the woodwork is in stock designs that harmonize with the development of the whole building. Stucco is generally considered an economical material for construction, and requires almost no upkeep. Notice the plain outlines of the house and the roof.

These considerations make for weather-tightness and economy.

Paneled Wainscot
A vestibule and boxed stair increase the winter comfort and add to the beauty of the home.

The long living room occupies the right side of the house, adjoining the porch. An outstanding feature of this room is its paneled wainscot of stained oak. This is a wall treatment that is not exorbitantly expensive and never needs replacement.

The living room cannot help being home-like, even when vacant, for it also has a room-end of bookcase and window seat, and a honey fire-place, opposite which is an interesting alcove on the inside wall.

Light Kitchen
There is a large, light kitchen, with windows on two sides to keep it cool and free from odors and steam, and there is plenty of space for a sink, refrigerator and work table. Only a small breakfast alcove separates it from the dining alcove where five people may be seated.

Upstairs, the three corner bedrooms are supplied with clothes closets, and one also has a built-in tray case, replacing a chiffonier in that room.

This house is estimated by the Curtis Service Bureau, Clinton, Ia., to cost about $6845. This includes heating, wiring and plumbing, although the sum may vary slightly in different parts of the country.

What's Going On In The World

Week's Chief Events Briefly Told

By Charles P. Stewart

The State Department's quoted now as doubting if the Pan-American Congress in March will induce the Uruguayan president, Dr. Bram's plan for a League of American Nations.

If North Americans had the slightest idea how South Americans feel, they never would have considered such a thing remotely possible.

The theory here seems to be that although Americans are North and South, yet they're all Americans and can agree, at any rate, on some sort of a joint attitude toward the rest of the world.

The fact is that South Americans are mostly unassimilated Europeans. They're a thousand miles nearer to Europe in sentiment, sympathy and comprehension than they are to the United States.

Not only are they Europeans but they're predominantly Spanish, and while the North American has pretty well forgotten his war with Spain, the Spaniard hasn't.

About the only feeling that the South American has toward the American is that the latter's a strong dangerous neighbor, and that the less the American of the south has to do with him, the safer he'll be.

ITE TOO LATE NOW
The United States had one chance, indeed, to win South American favor, but she botched it.

During the war South America needed her. If she'd merely been too busy to heed this call it wouldn't have been so bad. The allies, however, had various things they wanted done there that they didn't care to do themselves, because they knew the South Americans wouldn't like it, which would have their standing later on. So they invited the United States to attend to these matters for them, and she did. The thanks she received was to have the allies make capital out of it against her every chance they got.

North Americans' shortcomings after the conflict were mainly trade mistakes of ignorance, like forgetting, for instance, that December's mid-summer in July, mid-winter south of the Equator, and shipping winter goods in the spring and summer supplies in the fall.

Commercial rivals made the most of these errors, too.

Then there's the United States' persistence in trying to get Latin America into a patent and trade mark league with her, which, as a Venezuelan "Yellow Book" remarked, "would obligate us, at great expense, to organize a bureau to record all patents and trade marks registered in any of the signatory countries," a thing Venezuela isn't enthusiastic over, considering that the United States registers about as many a day as she does in a month.

These are just illustrations. South Americans are half irritated, half contemptuous at North Americans' failure to understand such things.

Of course there are individuals pro-North Americans. President Bram of Uruguay's one-for inter-continental reasons. He isn't representative.

NO SOLUTION YET
To the Ruhr puzzle no solution has been found.

France hasn't made a particle of progress in the direction of collecting any war damages, and as the Ruhr enterprise is very expensive, naturally she's getting worse and worse off financially every day she continues the occupation.

NORTHERN PACIFIC PLANS EXTENSION INTO RICH ROSEBUD COUNTRY

St. Paul, Feb. 24.—Construction of a $2,000,000 railroad in southeastern Montana by the Northern Pacific railway will result in the development of coal mining operations of type and extent such as will revolutionize the industry in the Northwest, it was disclosed here Thursday.

Northern Pacific officials declined to discuss the project but it was learned from authoritative sources that a right of way for the new line is being bought and that approximately forty square miles containing an exceptionally rich deposit of semibituminous coal, high in heating properties, is being acquired by purchase and by lease from the Federal government by the railway company.

To Begin Work on Road
The new coal field in the Rosebud district will be tapped by a new line to run thirty-five miles south from the main line near Forsyth, Mont. Construction of the branch line is scheduled to be started early this spring and completed next fall. Mining operations are expected to start then.

The Northern Pacific will operate the coal field, inaugurating open pit operations in the Northwest. Steam shovels will be used to remove the coal, which lies about thirty feet below the surface and generally is in deposits about thirty feet deep. This will be the first strip coal mining north of the Illinois fields, and is heralded by business men of the Twin Cities as the most important development in the mining industry in the Northwest since the opening of the Northern Minnesota iron mines. The bulk of the coal produced from the Rosebud district will be used by the Northern Pacific, but in the event of such a fuel scarcity as would endanger the Northwest, business men here believe the government would make the coal available to the open market. Because part of the field will be under government lease, the railroad would not be permitted to place the coal on the market under normal conditions.

Study Vast Coal Supply
Northern Pacific officials are known to be making a close study of electrification and the availability of this vast coal supply is admitted highly important in that connection. Location of a steam power plant at the mines in proximity to the deposits would permit cheaper electrification that a much larger investment necessary to establishment of a hydro-electric plant, Twin Cities engineers said.

Every report gives the Rosebud coal deposits as more than 350,000,000,000 tons. It is reported the Northern Pacific plans to produce about 1,000,000 tons annually. Transportation of the output to the main line will be especially economical as it will have very low grade into the field and a velocity grade from the mines to the main line.

The new railroad also will tap a rich farming and ranching section, at the south edge of the Tongue River and Crow Indian reservations. It is expected a new town will be an early development from the opening of the new strip mines.

The Northern Pacific is operating underground coal mines at Red Lodge but this method is more expensive than strip mining and the Red Lodge operations will be overshadowed by the Rosebud development, business men said.

There was so far in advance of his countrymen during the war that he barely missed facing a firing squad. Caillaux' for a "United States of Europe" and for land disarmament.

DEBT COLLECTING PLANS
The war debt funding arrangement which the Washington administration made with England has been approved by the United States Senate.

The senators, however, made a few changes, so the agreement will have to go back to the representatives for another indorsement. There's no chance that there will be any objection. The administration meant the agreement to be a model, it could follow in making similar settlements with other countries, without asking Congress about them again. But the Senate insists Congress shall keep on having the last word, as in the present case. That was the principal change made.

There's no occasion to worry about it at present, for no other country's threatening to pay the United States.

As for her own claims, England's showing signs of impatience. It's understood she soon will ask the allies who are under obligations to her when they can begin doing something about it.

Another report is that the American government and financiers will try to help the English pound back to parity with the United States dollar in international exchange markets, the idea being that this will send part of the world's gold, most of which has been gravitating in this country's direction, toward London.

It will be a good thing, if the plan works. While flatterer to have the bulk of the gold in existence, it's been overdue with bad results to American trade.

BOND BIDS ARE SOUGHT

School Board to Sell $85,000 of Bonds on March 13

The city school board, at a meeting last night, decided to advertise for bids for $85,000 of bonds voted in the recent school election, bids to be received on March 13.

Advance inquiries received indicate that the bids may be the best ever made in North Dakota, according to a board member, and it is expected the bonds will be sold at 5 percent or less interest.

The board expects to build the new west side grade school, beginning early in the spring.

A resolution was passed urging the advisability of developing debate work in the high school.

How Germany Is Defying The French Steam-Roller

Hugo Stinnes, Germany's richest man and, rumor says, the virtual dictator of her economic destiny, declares curtly concerning France's stranglehold on the Ruhr basin: "No negotiations by us. We shall fight it out." In terms equally explicit General Degoutte, commander of the French forces of occupation, announces that "never, until Germany makes adequate settlement for the frightful wrongs and damages inflicted upon my country, will I order my troops to withdraw." And speaking in Dusseldorf to a representative of the Associated Press, General Degoutte declared, "I solemnly warn Germany if a single one of my soldiers is harmed and she forces another battle on us, she will not stay our hands by crying 'Kamerad'! It will be a fight to the finish—a complete knockout."

The leading article in THE LITERARY DIGEST this week (February 24) shows the progress of the French occupation of the Ruhr basin and presents public opinion upon the subject from all angles. This interesting article is graphically illustrated with half-tones, cartoons, and a map which shows the grip that France has upon industrial Germany.

Miss Elaine Hammerstein, star of "One Week of Love," is that the role of Beth Wynn is one of the most interesting and certainly the most exciting she ever has played.

Baker's Cocoa

is the ideal drink for growing children

Not only does its delicious flavor and aroma appeal to the palate but it supplies the body with a considerable amount of pure, wholesome and nutritious food.

Children, owing to their almost ceaseless activity, frequently require as large an amount of nourishment as adults, and good cocoa is a valuable aid in the carefully arranged diet. But its quality must be good and no cocoa can quite so well meet the requirements of dietitian, physician, nurse or housekeeper as "BAKER'S."

Your Heritage of Music

All of the hopes, the fears, the joys and the sorrows that humanity has expressed in music have become the inheritance—not of the favored few but the many—through the instrumentality of the Victrola and Victor records.

The music of the past, the music of today, the music of tomorrow, the music whistled beneath your window or sung to the stars of the desert—these are yours to choose at any time, at a moment's notice—at your own fireside.

The music of all lands, of all times, and of all peoples! There is no other instrument of any kind that offers so infinite a variety of musical satisfaction as the Victrola does, but it is well to remember that all these thousands of Victor records were made to play on Victor instruments.

AT THE MOVIES

CAPITOL THEATRE
It is a strictly up-to-date story that is unfolded in "One Week of Love," the Selznick production that will be seen at the Capitol theater beginning Monday. The heroine is a modern girl—brave, resourceful and quick-witted—a regular fighting flapper. Miss Elaine Hammerstein, star of "One Week of Love," is that the role of Beth Wynn is one of the most interesting and certainly the most exciting she ever has played. As for the hero, he is not 100 per cent perfect American manhood. Women movie fans don't like the Model Hero any more. And so the leading man, played by Conway Forster in "One Week of Love," is a Bad Man. In fact, he is a Cave Man. Naturally, in the final fade-out he wins the girl.

Of course, "One Week of Love" has plenty of action because it depicts a clash of two strong wills. The melodrama has its beginning in an unusual situation. Beth Wynn decides to add one more adventure to her already daring career. So she wages one of her many suitors that she can beat him in an aeroplane race. But, as she is flying over the Western desert, she loses control of her plane. The plane crashes through the roof of a mining shack. Inside, are three men, three desperate gamblers. One of them is a white man but lower in his brutality than either of the half-breeds. The Beast he is called, wins Beth at cards. The story of his remarkable wooing and the struggle to gain back his soul forms the basis of the rest of the plot of this absorbing story.

THE ELTINGE.

The feature at the Eltinge for Monday and Tuesday is "Thirty Days," which is the last of the Wallace Reid pictures. Since the announcement that "Thirty Days" would be shown was made, a few have expressed doubt as to whether they would enjoy seeing a Wallace Reid picture at this time but the majority of the people who have expressed an opinion on the subject seem to be glad of an opportunity to see this last picture. The Eltinge theater seeks in no way to capitalize the publicity Wallace Reid received. "Thirty Days" is offered without undue advertising and simply as "the last Wallace Reid picture."

WHAT DOES WOMAN'S INTUITION WHISPER?

It must be woman's intuition that whispers the coquettish tilt of her hat; stands at her elbow when she selects the shade of fabric that best complements her coloring.

But no "sixth sense" need prompt her in idealizing those lovely lines of hers. Good judgment will tell her to be fitted with a Modart Corset.

There are nearly a million women who wear just one kind of corset—the Modart—and not one will give you the usual woman's answer, "because," if questioned about the matter of corsetry.

They have very definite reasons for wearing the Modart, for it does just what a corset should do and does nothing it shouldn't. That's the skill of Modart design. The Modart wearer has none of that corseted look or feeling.

Every type of figure will find a Modart—just the proper Modart—to bring out the ideal lines. And it fits splendidly—just smooth and perfect curves that follow the figure and the fashion as well.

Women might choose the Modart because it is so dainty and feminine and perfectly tailored. But they go on wearing the Modart because it gives so much better lines and so much more comfort than they ever believed a corset could. That is because there is no other corset like the Modart.

Your travels may take you from New York to Palm Beach, from Bar Harbor to the Golden Gate. Wherever you go among the gay throngs on the promenade, women may sidle in limousines, or colorful figures about the golfing grounds, you are sure to find Modart Corsets worn. Furnishing the background of quiet good taste in the character of delicate frocks or gowns, Modart Corsets are the choice of fastidious women.

CHEATING SELF

Word comes over the cable from Germany that Prof. Rontgen, discoverer of the X-ray and who died and was reburied recently, spent his last years in poverty.

He refused to patent his discovery, believing it so valuable that he should give it to the world without making a profit for himself. His chief income when he died was a pension of $30 a year. He lived at the home of a friend.

We have tremendous respect for Prof. Rontgen's high idealism. We do not believe that his wonderful brain was capable of having the "deviation from normal" that makes romantics desire to pose as martyrs. Nevertheless, he was a martyr, a victim of his ideals.

He was honest with the world.
But was he really honest with himself.

From cradle to grave we have the theory of honesty drummed into us. Did you ever observe that mostly this drumming has to do with honesty in our relations to others—and that little is said about honesty to ourselves?

It is dishonest to do less or to give less than we are paid for, making due allowances for the profit system which is indispensable under our present system of economics.

It is dishonest to steal.
It is dishonest to pay a man less than he is worth—again making allowances for the necessary margin of profit to the employer.

And it also is dishonest, to ourselves, to do or give material more than we are paid for. Stripped of bunk, there is nothing admirable in Old Faithful who slaves his life away at $65 a month on a job that should pay him $100. That's an unfair arrangement, and anything unfair is a form of dishonesty. This probably will be called radical, by people who utilize "force of circumstances" to exact exorbitant profit from the unfortunate who cannot help themselves.

You today are not the same person you were years ago. And the you of the future will be different from the you of today. The future you will be a worn-out machine, with earning power reduced. And you owe, to the future you, a just return on today's services so that you will not cheat the future you.

That individual of the future. YOU, is depending on you of today not to cheat him.

Rontgen, discoverer of the mysterious and invaluable X-ray, cheated his future self.

It's a good idea to apply, to this idea, this brake: It is as dishonest to attempt to get more than we are entitled to, as it is to take less.

PRICES

Here's good news: Bradstreet's agency reports that average wholesale prices of the 96 leading commodities advanced less than a tenth of 1 per cent during January. Why good news? Because, at least temporarily, it will help put the brakes on raising retail prices.

At the beginning of February, wholesale prices as reported by Bradstreet's were only 49 per cent higher than in 1913. Compared with Dec. 1, 1922, they showed a very slight drop. It may indicate a breathing spell instead of stabilization, but, at least, prices seem to be attracted to some kind of heavy weight that makes a runaway improbable. That weight is public willingness to pay, which in the long run is the real price regulator.

IMAGINARY

J. J. McNamara, government tea expert; says Americans get the best teas in the world, and many of the teas rejected here are re-shipped to England and Canada.

That will get a laugh from the English and Canadians, who claim that Americans do not know what a real drink of tea is. Similarly, American tourists claim that the coffee served in England and Canada is impossible. Doc Coue would explain this discrepancy of opinion as a matter of imagination and faith.

Imagination and faith may not regulate life, but they play a big part in the reactions we get from life, pleasant or not.

HANDICAPS

A young man, blind since boyhood, George H. Weinman, wins the Sage scholarship, highest honor at Northwestern University Law School.

Another young man, Ray Dudsinsky, came out of Delaware and recently made an excellent showing in a championship swimming meet, though he is minus a leg.

We call your attention to these two cases to show what the power of will can accomplish at overcoming handicaps. We are always bigger than our handicaps, if we only believe so.

BILLIONS

France says Germany owes her the equivalent of nearly 19 billion American dollars, for "reconstruction and other French expenditures recoverable under the Treaty of Versailles."

If France gets it, she can pay England, then England can pay us. By a roundabout process, part of the reparations thus are due to America from Germany, though many of us consider the matter as strictly European. What we will get back from Europe will depend largely on what Germany pays.

INTEREST

London newspapers figure that England, by the time it wipes out its debt to us, will have paid us nearly three times the actual amount due. That is, $2 of interest for each $1 of principal.

To pay us in full, nearly $5 a year will have to be contributed until 1985 by every British man, woman and child. It's a burden, all right, but not big enough to give them lame backs.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

LET IRELAND SAY WHICH President Cosgrave of the so-called Irish Free State declares that he is willing to have an election in Ireland to determine whether or not a majority of the people of Ireland want a republic or are content with such powers as the British government has consented to give them in the present so-called Irish Free State.

If this election is to be free and the suffrage is to be exercised by all of both sexes over 21, with the absence of all duress of any character, we cannot see why Mr. De Valera should hesitate to accept the proposal.

Indeed, we believe that Mr. De Valera will accept the proposal, for the Irish people are entitled to the kind of government they want. If they are willing to stay in the British empire and are content with the limited powers granted to them by the British government, it is not for the minority and it is certainly not for any outside people, whether of strange blood or of Irish blood, to raise any difficulties.

It would be a grand thing if a free election could be held to decide this question. Of course, it is fair to De Valera and the republicans who follow him to say that no election has yet been held in Ireland to decide whether the Irish people want a republic.

The election of delegates to the present Irish Free State did not involve directly or even indirectly that great question. Both sides intended that the question should be submitted, but the voting has not been prepared and the trouble broke out prematurely.

It may be said that the advocates of the Irish Free State government established by Great Britain are willing to join in a free, fair submission of the question of a republic or colony to the people of Ireland, we can see no excuse for the advocates of a republic to refuse.

Indeed, we do not believe that they will refuse to submit the question and to submit to the result of the vote Chicago Herald Examiner.

SUCCESS AND RESPONSIBILITY An insurance company recently carried out a survey, determining some of the factors that contribute to success, as well as to health and happiness. The policies on file were studied, and investigation was made of hundreds of men without their knowledge.

The findings indicate that out of one hundred men with no dependents upon them, forty-nine are successful. Of one hundred men, having two or more dependents, sixty-three are successful. It was found that out of one hundred single men, fifty-one are failures and forty-nine are successful. Out of one hundred married men fifty-nine, on an average, are successful.

The result also indicates that men who succeed, generally begin to show their mettle in the thirties. There are exceptions, of course, but the span between thirty and forty is the time when the average man finds himself and lays the foundation for his permanent work.

A man who marries gives a postage to fortune, and this responsibility anchors him much more strongly than does the lure of future gain. The acquisitive instinct is by no means the only factor that holds a man to his task. Habit, social imitation, the desire to stand out, do the responsible play a large part in success, because it generally means a firmer hold on a task, and this is the first step in the process of extracting ability, skill and fineness out of dull and stubborn drudgery. Whoever fills his mind and accomplishes his work, who gives to the world, who is not content with the best from others, succeeds whether or not he piles up a fortune. Minneapolis Journal.

There Seems To Be A Slump In The Hero-Business

BEGIN HERE TODAY

SIR NORMAN GREYES, formerly of Scotland Yard, joins the chase of MICHAEL SAYERS, famous criminal. Sayers, masquerading as Thomas Pugsley, broker, is recognized by Greys who sends a police inspector to arrest Sayers on the street. Sayers shoots the inspector and escapes. Returning to his home, Michael questions his maid.

JANET SOALE, Later at the golf club he finds Greys seated in the grill.

Known at the club as James Stanfield and suitably disguised, Michael is introduced to Sir Norman. The two men play a game of golf and their attention is attracted by the continued barking of a dog. Upon investigating they find the body of a man shot through the forehead. Greys recognizes the man as a detective employed to shadow Thomas Pugsley.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

JANET CONTINUES

A merchant with offices in the city and a country cottage for golf, does not carry a loaded revolver about with him. My heart quickened with excitement as I picked it up and handled it. I forgot my master's indifference. I ignored the fact that, although I was well enough to look upon, and that my face and figure have won me more admirers than I could count on the fingers of both hands, he had never cast a second glance in my direction. I still laid faith in myself. I chose to make the first advances. I have never made them to any man, but I have an instinct. I believe that he is cold and unresponsive from habit. I believe that if I could make him understand the fires which are burning me up night and day, he would throw off his mask of coldness and mystery, would give me that place in his life which I crave.

I was loitering about his room, looking still at that closed door, when to my amazement a man entered. A thin, weedy-looking person, with sunken cheeks and a straggling sandy mustache, I am not easily frightened, but I gave me a turn when he closed the door behind him.

"What do you want?" I asked sharply. "How dare you come up here?"

He looked at me earnestly. It was obvious that my first thought was a mistaken one. This was not one of the admirers whom I found it difficult sometimes to keep at arm's length.

"Young woman," he said. "I am a police officer. You seem to be a sensible girl. Answer the questions which I ask, do not obstruct me in the course of my duty, and you will be rewarded."

I looked at him in silence for several moments. I do not think that I changed color or showed anything of the terror which clutched my heart. My master was in danger. All the time I stood there, I was thinking. How was I to help? How could I help?

"Your master returned here an hour or so ago," this man continued, "and has now gone off to play golf. I want the clothes which he wore when he came down."

"How do you know that he changed?" I asked.

"I saw him come in and I saw him go out," was the quiet reply. "This is his bedroom, is it not?"

"It is," I admitted.

"Then the clothes must be here. Where are they?"

"I do not know," I answered. "I was looking for them myself. I was just going into the bathroom next door to see if he had left them there."

He stepped back and entered the bathroom. He was only gone for a few seconds, but I found time to take the revolver from the drawer and to slip it into my loose pocket. "The bath has not been used," he said a little shortly when he came back. "I should like you to stay with me while I search these drawers."

I made no objection, and he made a hasty search of the contents of the first two. When he came to the bottom one and found it locked, he gave vent to a little exclamation.

"He made no bones for what he did, nor offered any apology. With an instrument which he carried in his pocket, he forced the lock and went over the contents of the drawer. He was a man addicted, I should imagine, to silence, but I heard him muttering to himself at what he found. When he stood up, there was a smile of triumph upon his lips."

"What time do you expect your master back?" he inquired. "I do not know," answered. "He was lunching at the golf club and playing a round afterward. About five o'clock, I should think." He walked to the window and stood looking out over the links. I too looked out. In the far distance we could see two men playing.

EVERETT TRUE

BY CONDO

which were in my heart. He seemed perfectly indifferent, however, and in a few minutes he strolled out and made his way across the garden to the little wood. I took up my master's field glasses and satisfied myself that he was still a long distance away. I waited for a quarter of an hour. Then I took another path which led into the shrubbery, and made my way cautiously where the man was standing with folded arms, leaning against a tree.

I drew nearer and nearer. I am light-footed, and I have even called stealthy. It was part of my early training as a parlor-maid to make no noise when I moved. So I stole to within a few yards of him, unperceived and unheard. It was a queer, gusty November day, with tumbling masses of clouds in the sky, and a wind which bent the tops of the sparse trees and brought the leaves rustling down. Soon there would be company for the creeping and crawling insects to whom winter meant death. And afterward! I had a vivid little mind-picture of a crowded courtroom, of the judge who might try me and the jury who might pronounce my fate. For a moment I shivered. Then I thought of that loathsome caress. I thought of my master, and I smiled. If he knew, he would thank me. Some day he would know!

I was so close that I think my victim felt the breath from my lips or the sensation of my approaching body. He turned quickly around, and I saw his eyes wide open with apprehension. He would have shrunk away, but he seemed paralyzed; and as he stood there I shot him. He swayed on his feet an instant, then stumbled and slumped to the ground. I listened for a moment. Then I took the path back to the house. I had finished what I came out to do.

Michael Carver on the Story My round of golf with the man who was the declared hunter of my life and liberty afforded me no apprehension whatever, although I must confess that the first sight of Norman Greys seated in the club grill only an hour or so after he had witnessed the abortive attempt to arrest me, was something of a shock. I came to the conclusion, however, that his presence here was accidental, and in no way connected with that harmless and respectable inhabitant of the neighborhood, James Stanfield. I played golf steadily and with success. It was not until that startling discovery, close to the eighteenth tee, that my equanimity was seriously disturbed. As we looked down upon the dead body of the plain-clothes policeman whom I had last seen in Wootton Road, we both recognized him. No hint of anything in the sort, however, escaped from my lips.

After the first few seconds of stupefaction, Greys naturally took charge of the affair. He set the caddies to search all around for a weapon, and begged me to summon any member of anyone who might be of assistance. I called for Soale in vain, however, and remembering that he had asked leave to visit his brother at Mayford, I abandoned the quest. Subsequently, one of the men working on the course appeared, and he carried the body of my tool-soldier. Greys locked the door and telephoned for the police and doctor.

"You will excuse my apparent officiousness," he said, "but I once had some connection with Scotland Yard."

"There is nothing to excuse," I assured him. "I am only too thankful that you happened to be here. Do you think that it is a case of suicide?"

"I have reasons for doubting," he replied, "apart from which, if it were suicide, the weapon would have been found. As the event happened so close to you, Mr. Stanfield, and actually on your golf links, you will not mind, I am sure, if I question your servants."

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Off went Nancy and Nick toward Jack Straw's palace in Mix-Up Land, and with the broad-brimmed bullets and the rubber sword told them he lived beyond the fiery mountain in a domino palace.

"There's the fiery mountain now," said Nancy, pointing. "That won't be hard to get over. All we have to do is to wish, as we have our Magic Shoes 'n' all."

"Oh, I don't know about that now," said a voice and turning around the Twins beheld a little old lady with a basket of eggs. "I don't know about that! You see that fire gets higher and higher when anyone tries to get over it, so that bye and bye it touches the sun. Airplanes 'n' things like that aren't a bit of good."

"Oh, but we have Magic Shoes," said Nick. "We can even go to the moon."

"Say," said the old woman curiously. "If you tell me what you want to go for, I'll give you my basket of eggs."

"We want to get the ring off Jack Straw's left thumb and put Mix-Up Land to rights again," said Nick. "We want it to turn back into Apple-Pie Land and let Even-Steven be king again."

"You are brave children to attempt so much!" said the old woman. "Why, an army of a hundred thousand soldiers and a hundred thousand horses and a hundred thousand guns tried to put Jack Straw out one time, but the minute he saw them coming, he turned the ring on his thumb around, and lo and behold, they became mince-meat at once!"

"We're not afraid, just the same," scoffed Nick. "Come, Nancy, let's be going."

"Wait! Wait! Wait!" cried the old woman. "My eggs may help you. Take them along and whenever you are in trouble, break one. The fiery mountain is not the only thing you will have to overcome."

CAPITOL JOKES

Rarely does the man who remains calm in all emergencies lose an argument to the one who is prone to get excited.

The tale of the two apartment house dwellers proves the truth. There was a merry in Mr. Smith's suite. A good time was being had by all. Presently there came a knock at the door, and Mr. Brown's servant appeared.

"Beg pardon, sir," said the servant, "but Mr. Brown says will you make less noise, as he can't read." "That's interesting," said Mr. Smith. "I tell Mr. Brown I'm sorry he can't read; I could read when I was 6 years old."

A prominent resolution providing for a commission "to make a thorough and comprehensive study, investigation and analysis of the whole problem of school finance, school taxation and school administration is possible with a view to eliminating any unnecessary source of study, and to the reduction of taxation for school purposes" was placed before the house this afternoon by Rep. The resolution states that the problem of providing funds to maintain schools is yearly becoming more difficult to solve.

The commission of five persons proposed would report to the governor by Sept. 1, 1924. Mr. Trubshaw said the resolution was introduced in line with a letter from Gov. Nestos to the education committee.

"DEMONS" NOSE OUT MANDAN TEAM HERE

LAST MINUTE FINISH GIVES LOCALS GAME

Defeat Mandan 18 to 17 in Most Exciting Basketball Game of Year

ARE WELL MATCHED

In a game with thrills enough to satisfy the most rapid of fans, and teeming with excitement from start to finish, the "Demons" of Bismarck, high nooned out the strong Mandan five in a fast game on the local gym last evening by a count of 18-17.

The contest was staged before one of the largest crowds that ever assembled here to witness an athletic event. Two hours before the opening whistles blew every seat in the house was taken, and standing room was taxed to the limit by the incoming crowd thereafter.

Both teams played very creditable ball, using good teamwork. However, the shooting, especially of the home team, was not of the best calibre, but this was due to the absence of the defensive work, which did not allow either side ample time to gauge the net.

First Half
Long shots were the order during the initial minutes of play. Bismarck drawing first blood, when Alfson made a long throw from the side, after about two minutes had passed.

Burdick counted the first for Mandan on a free throw, but missed two shortly after, while Alfson negotiated one for his side. At this point, the Mandan five rallied and with the aid of a free throw, and two baskets by Love, took the lead.

Alfson made it 7-0 for the Demons, but Nelson tossed in a long one from the center of the floor, that looked good to put Mandan in the lead for the remainder of the first half, but Burke counted just before the end of the period, on a pass from Alfson under the basket, and the score stood at 9-0 for Bismarck at the end of the half.

Second Half
The last period was nip and tuck from start to finish, with each team battling for a lead. Love put Mandan ahead by making a difficult short shot after about a minute of play. Bismarck regained the lead when Burke dribbled down the floor, and dropped in a counter, but Newgard counted twice for Mandan, and the score stood 14-11.

The "Demons" then took time out and began a rally. Halloran brought the crowd to their feet with a pretty basket from the side of the floor, and amid a din and uproar, Alfson counted again, giving the local team a one-point margin.

Burdick missed a splendid opportunity to give his team the lead, by failing to make either of two fouls on the Bismarck team. Alfson scored again, when he recovered the sphere off our backboard.

Nelson succeeded in making a free throw for Mandan, and with but two minutes left, Love tied the score at seventeen on a pass from Williams.

It began to appear that an extra five minute period might be necessary to settle the conflict, but Love committed a foul, which Alfson made good, and Mandan was unable to score in the last minute of play.

Centers Good
In Alfson and Love, Bismarck and Mandan have two men who cannot be equalled at the pivot position. Alfson scored twelve out of eighteen points for his team, and Love was the stellar performer for Mandan.

Defensive Fight
The defensive work of both teams was well carried out. The work of Middaugh, for the "Demons" probably stood out more than any other man. He was at his best last night, and fought from start to finish. When he went after a man, he was to be depended to stay with him.

Forward Good
The forwards on both teams played good ball, but were unable to locate the net consistently. Burke worked well under the basket, while Halloran was a dangerous man from the sides. Newgard was watched closely, and did not get away with his usual success, but both Burdick and he, contributed strongly to the teamwork.

District Tournament
Bismarck and Mandan will meet again on the local gym in the District Tournament which is to be played off next week. The dates are March 2 and 3. The outcome of this game will decide who is to represent this district at the state tournament at Fargo two weeks later.

Off For Dickin
Coach Houser took his team to Dickinson this morning where they will play a return game with the quintet representing that city. This is the last contest before the tournament.

Baseballing in Japan! George Kelly Hero Title of Home-Run King Means Nothing to Rogers Hornsby

WAITE HOYT, STAR PITCHER OF THE NEW YORK AMERICANS AND WORLD SERIES HERO, WHO RECENTLY RETURNED WITH THE ORIENTAL BASEBALL EXPEDITION, AND HAS TOLD HIS STORY OF THE TRIP TO BILLY EVANS OF NEA SERVICE.

By Waite Hoyt
Pitcher for the New York Americans and World Series Hero

George Kelly of the New York Giants was the outstanding hero of the baseball expedition to the Orient, from the Japanese viewpoint.

The Japs being small of stature, Kelly, six feet four inches, was regarded as a superman, even in civilian clothes. Around the hotel or at the railroad stations, Kelly was always the center of attraction.

In a baseball uniform Kelly seems even taller, and when he and John Lavan, who was playing short for our team, held a conference it always got a big laugh. Lavan and Kelly were the Mutt and Jeff combination of the trip. These two famous comic characters are almost as well known in Japan as this country.

Aside from the hitting ability of the Americans, the Japs marveled at our long-distance throwing, and the accuracy with which the outfielders could get the ball to the plate.

Kelly has a great arm. His throwing ability, added to his size, also helped to make him a big hero in the eyes of the Jap fans.

Even more interesting to some of the fans than the game itself was Kelly's exhibition of long-distance throwing. This was an added feature before each game.

Standing in the outfield, at the remotest point in the park, or at the home plate, Kelly would make several long-distance throws after getting the ball.

LEFT TO RIGHT—GEORGE TOPORCER, LEE MEADOWS

By NEA Service.
St. Louis, Feb. 24.—Rogers Hornsby, star slugger of the St. Louis Cardinals takes no great credit for his feat of dethroning Babe Ruth as the home-run slugger of the universe.

When asked if he believed he would again show the way in the matter of home runs to Babe Ruth he replied: "Never had a thought that I would be the home-run king at the start of the 1922 campaign. It all just happened. I was no better hitter last year than I was five years ago. Neither have I changed my style at bat."

"I just cut away at the ball in my usual manner, but I must admit it traveled much farther. Either the ball is much livelier or the pitching not so good, because I hit at them in the same old way."

Home runs mean nothing to Hornsby. He says a slugging pitcher means more than some by that falls into a short stand for a fluke home run.

Hornsby wants to lead the National League in hitting again. As a matter of fact, he would like to shoot at some of the records now held by Cobb and Wagner.

He also would like to take part in a world series before he ends his career as a big leaguer. He rather fancies that he has a chance to get there in 1923.

Chance Could Make Pennant Winner Out of Red Sox Discards
The Boston Red Sox haven't cut much of a swath in beating other clubs out of pennants in the last few years but they can at least lay claim to being one of the greatest "selling-and-trading" outfits in the game's history.

For the Beantown management has no doubt pulled off more sales and exchanges of recent seasons than have any two clubs combined. In fact they have got "mud" of a small army of players, and for the most part have received the short end of the stick.

If Frank Chance had only part of the men who have been sent to other clubs on his roster for the coming campaign, he would have a most formidable aggregation. For he could muster a lineup which could doubtless hold its own with any in the circuit.

Primarily there would be Schanz, catcher; Bush, Jones, Mays, Hoyt, Collins and Pennock, pitchers; Mel-nis first base; Pratt, second base; Scott, shortstop; McNally, third base; Wood, right field; Speaker, center fielder and Ruth, left field. Eddie Foster and "Chick" Shorten could be used in utility roles.

Glancing over the list, Chance would have a top-notch receiver, a great staff of hurlers three first-class infielders, and two of the outstanding stars of the game in the outfield. What more could a manager ask?

Chances are that the Red Sox have left a result of all their sales and trades are men who are either oldtimers in the game or are young and untied recruits.

MAPLES FALL BEFORE LIONS
The Lions took the honors at the local bowling alley Thursday night when they collected a total of 2589 pins and took two out of three games from the Giants.

The Hawks took two out of three from the Wild Cats which put the Wild Cats in last place with the Capitals.

BISONS BEAT FLICKERTAILS BY 30 TO 15
Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 24.—The basketball game here with the University resulted in 30 to 15 in favor of aggies.

Playing a dazzling brand of ball and outclassing the Flickertail quintet of the University of North Dakota completely, the North Dakota Bisons returned to Fargo on the long end of a 30 to 15 score in the second game of a two contest series played at Grand Forks.

Two hundred jubilant Bison fans met the returning warriors at the station and paraded the city lustily voicing the praises of the excellent basketball was displayed by both teams. The Bison offense looked a vicious attack and swept the Flickertail defense out of its path and rolled up a tremendously safe lead. The defeat was the worst administered the Davis men in years.

The Flickers excelled in no department of the game and before the contest closed Coach Davis inserted four reserve men, realizing that the contest was lost.

First Half Viciously Fought
The first half was viciously fought and was tied at four stages of the play. The half ended 12 to 10 for the Bisons. The Flickertails held the lead at no time during the game.

"On July 1, 1923, $1,100,000 of the allotment of 1921 which is available to the state only until June 30, 1923, or the 1922 allotment available only until June 30, 1922, and which probably would be lost until the state highway department began operations in full on Jan. 1, 1925.

"This is a total we can get of $3,000,000 in three years.

or nine districts, and the eagerness to get buildings at interest-free would lead to log-rolling and vote-trading.

Rep. Starke admitted this was true, but said that "there would not be any more trading or combinations than there is now."

Rep. Madcock, Mountrail, said that "if we continue to look at this from the Chinese angle—being afraid of anything new—we shall go back to the stone age, where some of our neighbors are."

POLLS CLOSING SET AT 7 P. M. IN THE CITIES
The appropriations committee, of which Rep. Watt, Cass county, chairman, demonstrated its intention to pass senate appropriations if possible. It recommended a cut in the historical society appropriation from $22,300 to $20,710, the reduction being the salary of the curator of the society museum from $3,000 to $2,500 a year. It also cut total tax of $37.02 in Bismarck in 1922 would under the new law be $71.56, a property of a laborer which netted a total tax of $31.82, was listed at $48.49, a 46 percent increase, while a certain traveling salesman's residence which netted $49.19, under the new law would yield $93.04 an increase of 89 percent.

The administration leaders are fully aware of the possible protest that might develop. They say, however, and concede that there is an inequality between the taxes of the city-resident and the farm dweller and the inequality must be adjusted. The perfect point cut that the ideal method of taxation is the removal of every exemption and the levy of taxes on 100 percent valuation. This is held impossible at present and is something that must be worked up to gradually. Under the proposed 75 percent assessed valuation plan with practically all exemptions removed except those on farm property thousands would bear a more just and equitable share of government costs.

Burleigh Records
They cite figures taken from the records of Burleigh county which apply to villages throughout the state. One taxpayer at Wing paid a 7.5 percent tax on exemptions but $2.72 on his buildings a total of $3.52 and no personal property tax. Under the proposed change, his lot would be but .60, his building $15.62 and personal property $3.36, a total of $19.58, a total increase of 455 percent. A general store in the village of Wing, paid on lot and building $7.68 with no personal property tax. Under the change and abolition of exemptions, the same property would pay $22.01, an increase of 198 percent.

NO CASES OF SLEEP VICTIMS FOUND HERE

Bring Eight Cases to Bismarck in Past Month

TWO FATALITIES

Deaths Are Most Frequent Among Men From 25 to 50 Years

While a number of cases of encephalitis, or sleeping sickness, as it is more commonly called, have developed during the past month not a single case has originated up to the present time in Bismarck.

Reports of eight such cases brought to Bismarck for treatment at a local hospital from Mercer county chiefly have been made to Dr. C. E. Stackhouse, public health officer, although none have been reported to him within the past ten days. Two of the victims of the disease have succumbed, Mrs. H. C. Day of Hazen, recently and another patient from Hazen some time ago. Six cases are under treatment at a local hospital.

The sickness, it is reported, is due to a germ which scientists at the Rockefeller Institute have been able to isolate, but no vaccine for prevention has yet been discovered.

This disease made its first appearance in Austria, Hungary, in 1917, physicians report, just prior to the influenza epidemic which swept over the world. It was thought for some time that the germ was in some way connected with the influenza germ, since the epidemic raged in England at the same as influenza, but this supposition was contradicted both by the experiences in Austria where it started before the influenza epidemic began and in the United States after the spread of the epidemic.

Doctors say the main feature of the disease is its variability. Not frequently, however, it begins with a cold, weakness, a headache and dizziness. The best preventative methods is for a person with any of these symptoms to observe quiet.

Physicians report that male adults from the ages of 25 to 50 have been the chief victims of the disease although persons from the ages of 17 to 64 years have been attacked by the disease, which has proved fatal in many instances.

Mandan has four patients suffering from sleeping sickness. In the cases of several indications of recovery are shown.

TOWNLEY HEADS NON POLITICAL ORGANIZATION

Minneapolis, Feb. 24.—A. C. Townley, founder and former president and directing genius of the National Nonpartisan League, is the head of a new nationwide nonpolitical farm movement which was launched by a group of 75 farmers from 12 states at a meeting here last night, according to an announcement today by leaders of the movement.

According to the announcement the purpose of the two organizations it claimed is for the stabilization of farm product prices through voluntary control of acreage and dissemination of price and market information and advice.

The national committee of the new organization was announced as: N. K. Wicks, Grantford, N. D.; Dan Eliason, Cooks, S. D.; Herman Myers, Hooper, Neb.; C. J. Dietrich, Selden, Kan.; O. S. Evans, Neosho, Mo.; L. J. Alving, Kanawha, Ia., and eight others from various parts of the country.

DODGE PAINT JOB STANDS UP UNDER GRIND

An excellent illustration of what endurance and quality there is in Dodge Brothers oven-baked enamel finish, which is used on their open and closed cars, has just been shown by a Dodge touring car in the service of the State Highway Commission.

The United States government has shipped many Dodges to the Highway Commission. All of these cars had been painted by the Government, over the enamel finish as furnished by Dodge Brothers. This repainting to olive drab is in accordance with regulations of the Army. However the State Highway Commission wished to have their cars with only the baked enamel finish, so they have taken varnish remover, taken off the olive drab paint put on by the government, and the original Dodge Brothers enamel finish is underneath, just as good as the day it was put on at the factory, and after seeing years of hardest service. This is an excellent example of what an enduring finish Dodge Brothers use on their cars.

PROBE FIRE.
Kansas City, Kan., Feb. 24.—State and county officials today began a formal inquiry to determine the cause of the rooming house fire which yesterday cost thirteen lives. Thirteen bodies were removed all of which have been identified.

HARDING TO GIVE CONGRESS FINAL WORD

Washington, Feb. 24.—President Harding was engaged today in writing what was described as "an important communication to Congress." While House officials declined to indicate the subject, and beyond saying it would be an important document and would be forwarded later today all information was withheld.

DODGE BROTHERS BUSINESS SEDAN

Dodge Brothers, with equal aptness, could have named it the Family Sedan.

In the first place, it is big and roomy—a five-passenger car that will really seat five adults in comfort. There is no space wasted on superfluous adornments. Every inch of body and chassis is put to actual use.

There are no delicate cloth furnishings to be soiled by the children. The seats are upholstered in durable and attractive blue Spanish leather.

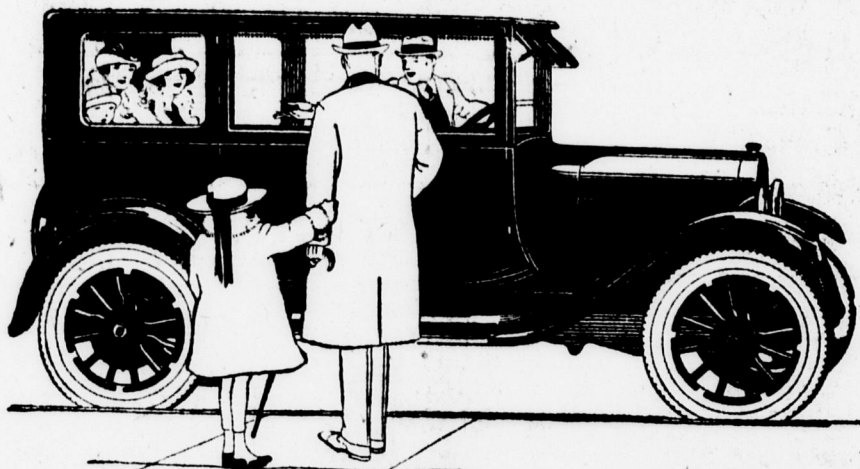

There is no sensitive varnish to be easily scratched or finger-spotted. The body is steel-built—a new principle in Sedan design—making it possible to finish the exterior in Dodge Brothers oven-baked enamel, the most durable finish known.

The rear seat furnishings come out—instantly converting the rear section into a spacious carrying compartment—handy for carrying trunks, boxes and household luggage of all sorts.

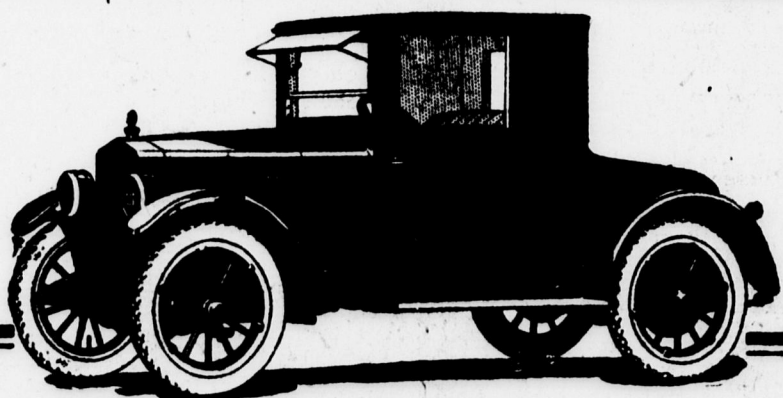

Children can romp and play to their hearts' content in this car, and when cleaning time comes, you can turn the hose on it—inside and out.

The price is $1375.00 delivered in Bismarck
